Who

activators

We are the Counterculture History Coalition
a growing network of researchers, archivists, artists, writers, and cultural practitioners working to preserve, study, and reactivate the histories of the counterculture.

Where

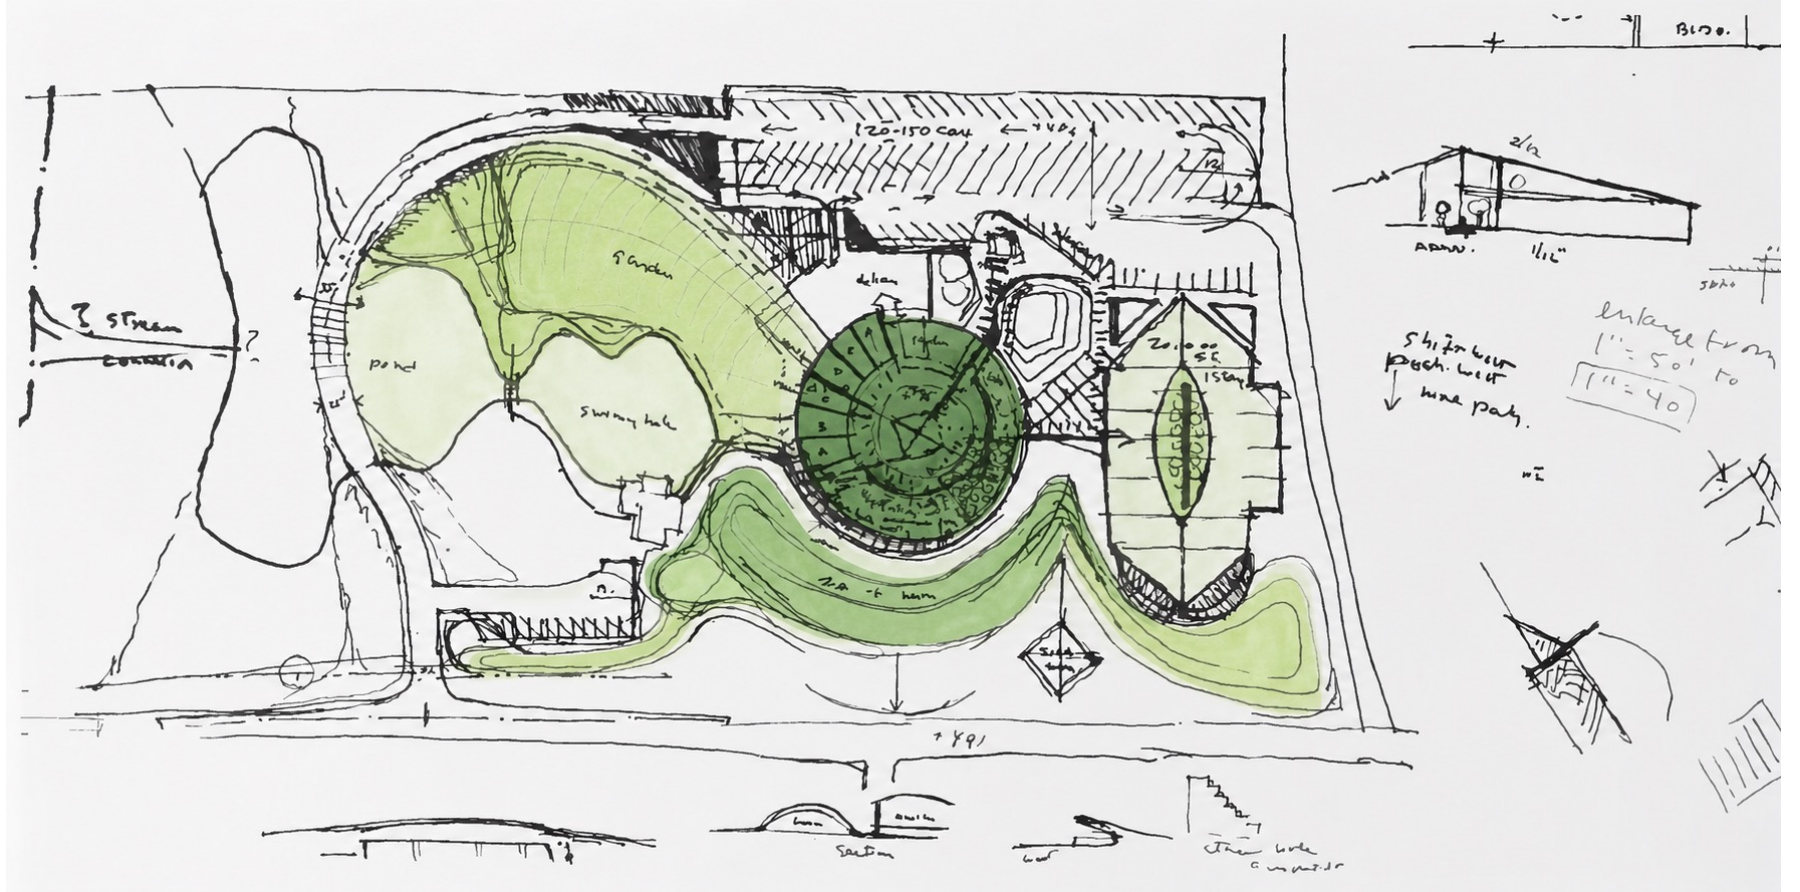

eco-designed place

The Solar Living Center in Hopland, California, is an emblematic site of ecological design and environmental imagination.

Built by John Schaeffer, founder of Real Goods, with Sim van der Ryn and David Arkin, architects and designers in association with landscapers.

living landmark

The Solar Living Center is A PLACE where counterculture, ecological architecture, environmental education, lived experimentation meet in concrete form.

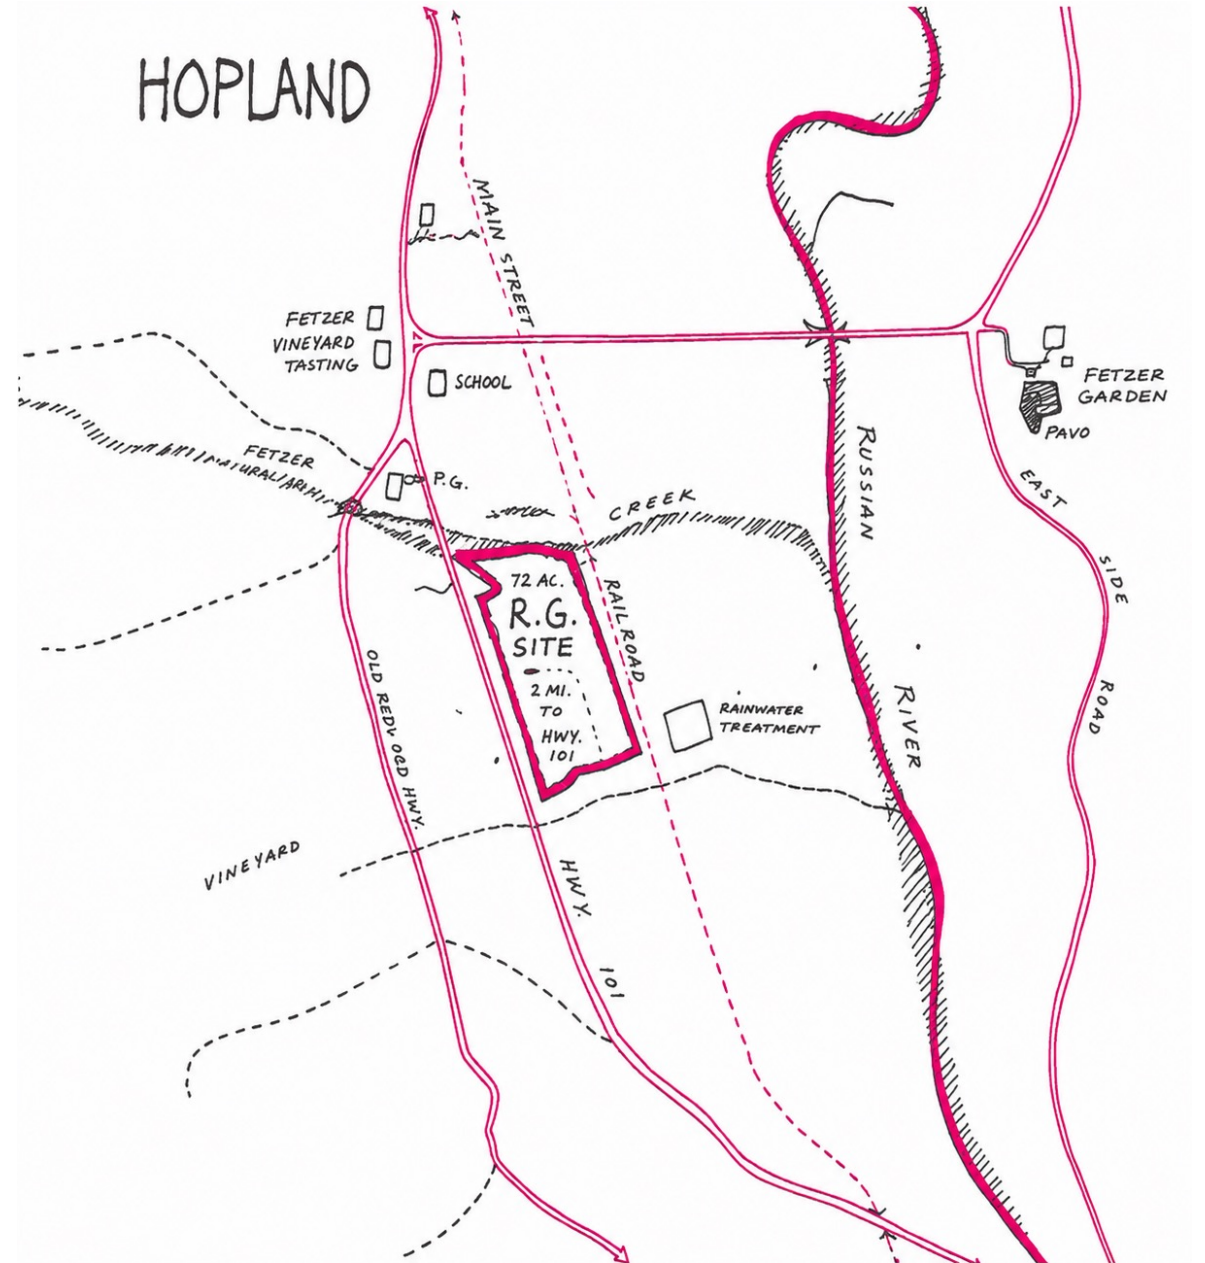

SLC stands as a powerful landmark in the history of alternative ways of building, inhabiting, and thinking.

What for

urgent pastpresentfutures

To show living links between past, present, and future.

To make archives active and vibrant.
To bring together research, transmission, public programs, and collective memory at a time when countercultural heritage may be more relevant than ever for imagining a better future for planet Earth.

How

all together

With the support of the current owner of the site, Ned Fussell and you all, who is dedicated to the ideals of its design.

We envision beginning with public events and research activity:

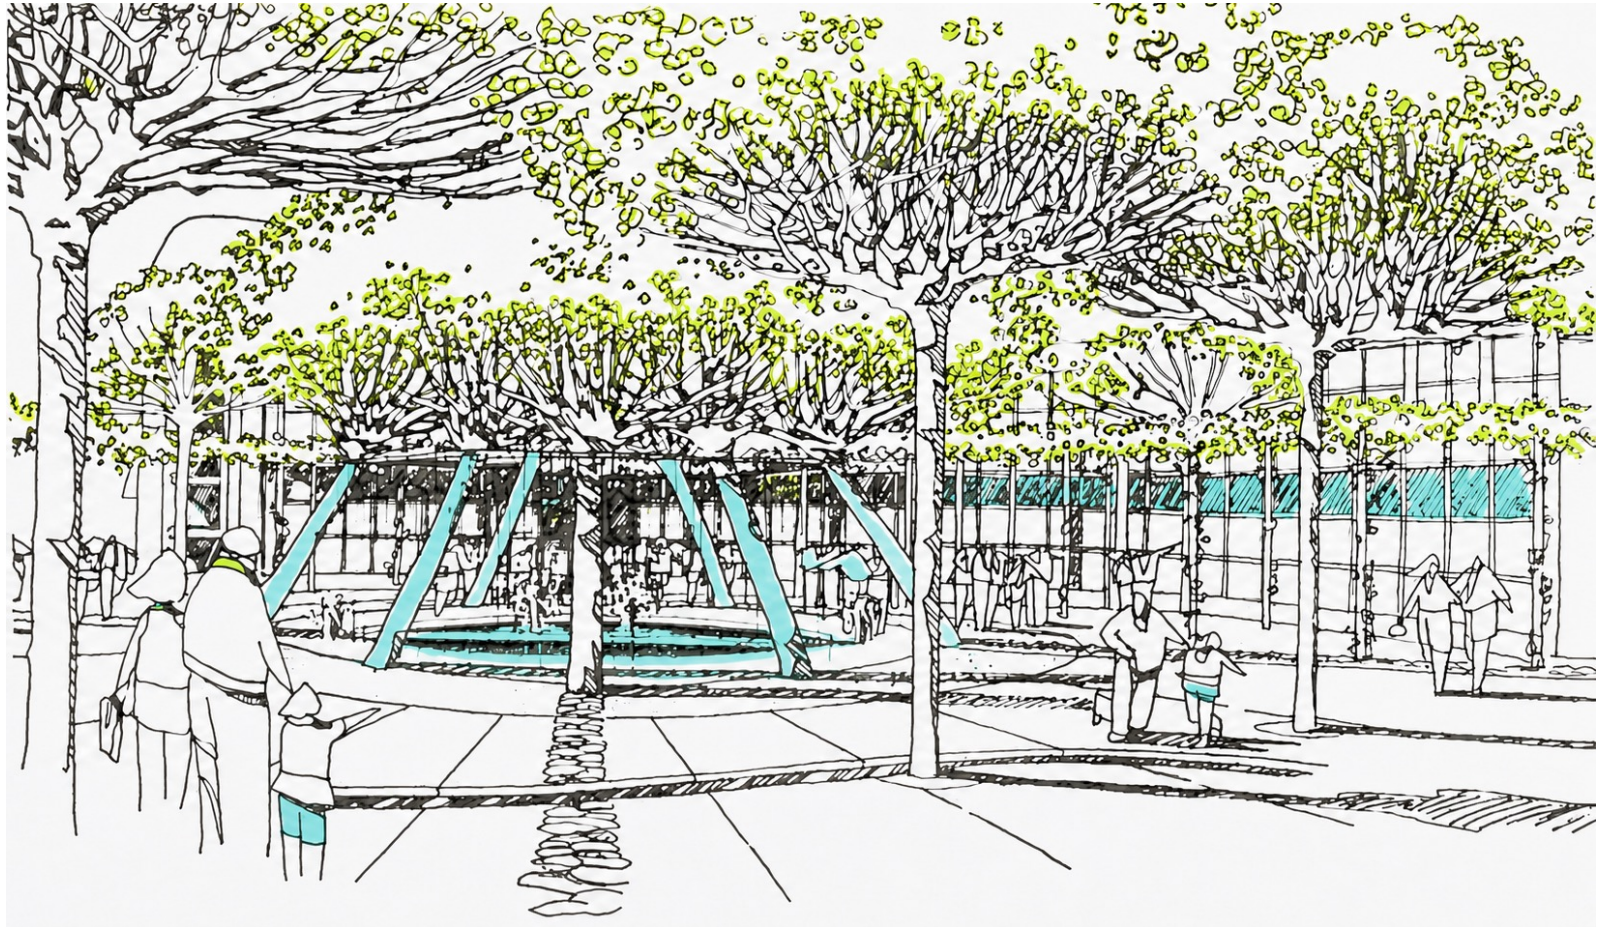

- onsite conferences and counterculture archive residencies
- flexible spaces for study, cataloging, and archival access
- an off-site archival storage facility
